

Southern U.S. Technology Companies Debut Game-Changing Technologies at 2015 International CES

More than 190 companies from Southern U.S. exhibit at world's gathering place for technology innovation

"UniKey is the technology that powers Kwikset Kevo, the first Smart Lock. With Kevo's passive entry, your smart phone replaces keys without removing your phone from your pocket or purse. The 2015 International CES is the perfect place to reveal our new solutions utilizing this same passive keyless entry technology for new vertical markets such as hospitality and commercial."

- Phil Dumas, UniKey founder and president, based in Winter Park, FL

"Global Product Solutions will continue its quest to innovate in the contemporary lifestyle design field with great functionality of our products and not follow the usual trends set. CES will take us to this next level with the tremendous exposure and networking opportunities."

- Errol D Guggenheim, chief operating officer of Global Product Solutions, based in Atlanta, GA

"There has been rapid, widespread adoption of our PerformTek biometric wearable technology in the fitness and health sector as well as the gaming and first responder industries because of our unique ability to accurately monitor heart rate in any form factor, during any activity. CES is the perfect opportunity to put our technology, the pulse of the wearable world, on the global stage."

- Dr. Steven LeBoeuf, president of Valencell, based in Raleigh, NC

"The 2015 CES is definitely the Expo to experience if you are into tech gadgets. At this year's show we will be launching the all new SurviveDrive, the easiest way to back up your personal PC. Save Pictures, Save Documents, Save Everything with just one click."

- Neal A Hynes, chief technical officer of C-Capture Inc., based in Palm Beach Gardens, FL

"At this year's show we will be focusing on promoting the ultimate workout wearable, our TICKR X. We'll highlight how the combination of heart rate and cutting edge motion analytics make this device the ultimate tool for serious training. CES provides the best global platform for consumer product technology and innovation, and it is one of the best places for Wahoo Fitness to engage in the conversation."

- Chip Hawkins, CEO of Wahoo Fitness, based in Atlanta, GA

"As KICKER approaches its 42nd year in high-performance audio we pay special attention to the four big days each January at the Consumer Electronics Show when we debut our latest new designs, and 2015 promises to be a landmark year as we unveil our all-new Q-Class line of amplifiers, component speakers and award-winning subwoofers."

- Kevin Campbell, marketing director at KICKER Performance Audio, based in Stillwater, OK

"CES is providing us with extraordinary opportunities to showcase our convenient and comprehensive mobile fitness application. We're particularly looking forward to participating in the first-ever Shark Tank competition at the Sports and Fitness Tech Summit where we can effectively showcase the many features and functionalities our solution provides clients to reach their personal fitness goals."

- Bob Summers, founder and chief geek of Fitnet, based in Blacksburg, VA

"CES is the perfect forum for Iert.ly to launch. We get to demonstrate live to potential customers and partners how our ultra-low-power wi-fi safety and emergency system can bring peace of mind to senior citizens and schools alike, through the combination of advanced cloud-based monitoring and easy to install and operate, all battery-powered / all-wifi sensors and emergency notification devices (including our new wearable campus pendant)."

- John McKinley, founder and CEO of Iert.ly, based in Reston, VA

"Ontrion greatly anticipates our participation in the 2015 International CES. Its global reach and its focus on consumer electronics and technology offer us business opportunities we could find nowhere else. I can think of no better venue from which to launch our newest mobile technology products. This year marks some exciting advancements for us, and CES will help us get into the forefront of consumers who desire our products most."

- Jesse Khurana, founder of Ontrion, based in Dallas, TX

"We are bringing the most innovative product of all outdoor markets to the 2015 CES. It will be an extraordinary show both for our company and for the visitors."

- Rolandas Sereika, chief marketing officer and one of the founders of Friday Lab, based in Orlando, FL

“The 2015 International CES is important to us, as it’s the best venue to showcase the results of our year-long R&D activities. This year we are presenting our unique cost-effective instant 3D capturing solution for SMB.”

- Konstantin Popov, president and CEO of Cappasity Inc., based in Houston, TX
